OB HEMORRHAGE: CARTS, KITS AND TRAYS
Leslie Casper, MD, San Diego Medical Center, Southern California Permanente Medical Group; Richard Lee, MD, Los Angeles County and University of Southern California Medical Center

BACKGROUND AND LITERATURE REVIEW
Postpartum hemorrhage (PPH) is a commonly encountered obstetrical emergency on labor and delivery units throughout California. (1) Although medical management is often successful in treating PPH, the obstetrician may have to resort to surgical measures. For ideal response to the emergency, the obstetrician should have rapid access to surgical instruments and tools designed to treat PPH. Equipment and instruments compiled on an obstetrical hemorrhage “cart” is designed to treat vaginal/cervical lacerations and perform uterine tamponade or uterine/ovarian artery ligation. In short, the cart would have all the instruments necessary to treat PPH before hysterectomy is considered. The reader is referred to other guidelines in this toolkit that depict the use of these techniques. For more in-depth details about the hemorrhage cart, the reader is referred to articles by T.F. Baskett. (2, 3)

RECOMMENDATION
Labor and delivery units construct a sterile tray that provides rapid access to instruments used to surgically treat PPH. Hysterectomy trays are separately available.

EVIDENCE GRADING

Level of Evidence: III. Opinions of respected authorities based on clinical experience, descriptive studies or reports of expert committees.

Level of Evidence: II-3. Evidence obtained from multiple time series with or without intervention. Dramatic results in uncontrolled experiments also could be regarded as this type of evidence. Strong quality improvement data such as statistical process control, or other well-designed analysis.
